

Definite and Indefinite Articles (a, an, the)

- In English there are three articles: a, an, and the. Articles are used before nouns or noun equivalents and are a type of adjective.
- The definite article (the) is used before a noun to indicate that the identity of the noun is known to the reader.
- The indefinite article (a, an) is used before a noun that is general or when its identity is not known. There are certain situations in which a noun takes no article.
- As a guide, the following definitions and table summarize the basic use of articles. Continue reading for a more detailed explanation of the rules and for examples of how and when to apply them.

Definite article

The (before a singular or plural noun)

Indefinite article

- A (before a singular noun beginning with a consonant sound)
- An (before a singular noun beginning with a vowel sound)
- Count nouns - refers to items that can be counted and are either singular or plural
- Non-count nouns - refers to items that are not counted and are always singular

COUNT NOUNS      NON-COUNT NOUNS

Rule #1

Specific identity not known    a, an    (no article)

Rule #2

Specific identity known      the      the

Rule #3

All things or things in general      (no article)    (no article)

- For the purposes of understanding how articles are used, it is important to know that nouns can be either count (can be counted) or noncount (indefinite in quantity and cannot be counted). In addition, count nouns are either singular (one) or plural (more than one). Noncount nouns are always in singular form.
- For example, if we are speaking of water that has been spilled on the table, there can be one drop (singular) or two or more drops (plural) of water on the table. The word drop in this example is a count noun because we can count the number of drops. Therefore, according to the rules applying to count nouns, the word drop would use the articles a or the.
- However, if we are speaking of water in general spilled on the table, it would not be appropriate to count one water or two waters -- there would simply be water on the table. Water is a noncount noun. Therefore, according to the rules applying to noncount nouns, the word water would use no article or the, but not a.
- Following are the three specific rules which explain the use of definite and indefinite articles.
- Rule #1 - Specific identity not known: Use the indefinite article a or an only with a singular count noun whose specific identity is not known to the reader. Use a before nouns that begin with a consonant sound, and use an before nouns that begin with a vowel sound.
- Use the article a or an to indicate any non-specified member of a group or category.
I think an animal is in the garage
That man is a scoundrel.
We are looking for an apartment.
- Use the article a or an to indicate one in number (as opposed to more than one).
I own a cat and two dogs.
- Use the article a before a consonant sound, and use an before a vowel sound.
a boy, an apple

- Sometimes an adjective comes between the article and noun:

an unhappy boy, a red apple

- The plural form of a or an is some. Use some to indicate an unspecified, limited amount (but more than one).
an apple, some apples
- Rule #2 - Specific identity known: Use the definite article the with any noun (whether singular or plural, count or noncount) when the specific identity of the noun is known to the reader, as in the following situations:
  - Use the article the when a particular noun has already been mentioned previously.
I ate an apple yesterday. The apple was juicy and delicious.
  - Use the article the when an adjective, phrase, or clause describing the noun clarifies or restricts its identity.
The boy sitting next to me raised his hand.
Thank you for the advice you gave me.
  - Use the article the when the noun refers to something or someone that is unique.
the theory of relativity
the 2003 federal budget
- Rule #3 - All things or things in general: Use no article with plural count nouns or any noncount nouns used to mean all or in general.
  - Trees are beautiful in the fall. (All trees are beautiful in the fall.)
He was asking for advice. (He was asking for advice in general.)
I do not like coffee. (I do not like all coffee in general.)
